Did you know?

The top three causes of 1990 farm-related injuries in Iowa were machinery (32 percent of all injuries), animals (17 percent), and slips and falls (11 percent). However, the severity of these injuries differs. Only 14 percent of the injuries caused by animals resulted in hospitalization; 19 percent of injuries caused by falls and 26 percent of injuries caused by machinery resulted in a hospital stay.

Acute chemical injury accounted for only 2 percent of the total reported agricultural injuries in 1990. Real concern about chemicals is long-term exposure.

Farm machinery, including tractors, was the number one killer on Iowa farms with 37 deaths reported.

Youths age 19 and younger made up 20 percent of the total number of farm-related injuries.

Safe Farm is an Iowa State University Extension project helping to make Iowa farms a safer place to work and live.

Based on information from the Iowa Department of Public Health, Sentinel Project Researching Agricultural Injury Notification Systems (SPRAINS). Prepared by Charles Schwab, extension safety specialist, and Laura Miller, extension communications. Design by Valerie King.

Issued in furtherance of Cooperative Extension work, Acts of May 8 and June 30, 1914, in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Nolan R. Hartwig, interim director, Cooperative Extension Service, Iowa State University of Science and Technology, Ames, Iowa.
